

Executive Editor: Inaugural Message

In the field of health sciences, research-based work is progressing day by day, and the need to accredit and publish the original work of authors is addressed in many ways. We have tried to lay a foundation stone and a platform to serve and help medical and health Sciences research accomplishments in Nepal and abroad, following current international guidelines in the publishing field.

In order to facilitate the original work, the Medical Journal of Eastern Nepal (MJEN) is established under the umbrella of B&C Medical College Teaching Hospital and Research Center publications that will address: the significant and latest development in Health Sciences and Life Sciences, academic research, and inspiration to improve practice, provision of online journals and print publications to individuals and institutions and creating public access through our journal by conducting research methodology workshops for researchers to help them prepare research papers and get them published. Half years hosting different scholarly manuscripts and latest findings related to broad-spectrum disciplines e.g. microbiology, molecular biology, biochemistry, Pharmacy, general surgery, general medicine, public health, pediatrics, pathology, dentistry, biotechnology also including all clinical disciplines. MJEN is offering, a well-organized and user-friendly online handling system. Moreover, we will ensure the publication of high-quality manuscripts via an efficient peer review process that involves two independent reviewers and the process will be double-blind for the reviewer and the author as well.

MJEN to provide constructive, substantial, and reliable involvement of the scientific community. Our vision is to propel a transformational initiative, by providing dedicated services to medical professionals to publish research-based knowledge applicable to the best medical practices. MJEN would like to acknowledge persons involved in the establishment of MJEN, its planning, organization, and formulation of mission and vision statement, the editorial board, and professional staff members. MJEN would like to thank and express gratitude to the people who got involved in this journal from the authors, reviewers, and editorial staff whose sincere hard work has made it a reality. We look forward to its positive growth with the help and encouragement of its well-wishers and contributors that trusted us from the beginning.

MJEN team is certain that with this unconditional support from such a prominent and large team of bio-research, doctors, and healthcare professionals who wish to be kept informed and up-to-date with the latest and most important development in the field of Health Sciences, will definitely become one of the most prestigious journals. We hope to hear from you soon and we welcome your feedback. Email address them to bncjournal2021@gmail.com/editormjen@gmail.com/mjenmanuscript@gmail.com

We hope you will find MJEN informative and timely.

Thank you

Executive Editor
A K Sinha
MJEN